

Woman Archeologist to Lecture On Ancient Peru's Mummies

Movie on Unwrapping Will Be Shown at Pan American Union

If there's anything you don't happen to know about Peruvian mummies, the person to see is Dr. Rebecca Carrion Cachot of Lima, Peru, who recently escorted a 3,000-year-old character from Lima to New York.

She has 351 more mummies waiting to be unwrapped in the Peruvian National Museum of Archeology in Lima, where 48 already have been opened.

Dr. Carrion is director of the museum and pupil of the late archeologist, Dr. Julio C. Tello, who found the mummies while excavating in a desert south of Lima in 1897. Dr. Tello died two years ago. Dr. Carrion also is a professor in the University of San Marcos, the oldest institution of higher learning in the Western Hemisphere.

Lost Civilization.
Dr. Carrion's research indicates all the mummies were priests or physicians of the Paracas civilization, all traces of which disappeared before the Spanish conquest in the 16th century. Their civilization had developed a culture, part of which has never been surpassed, she said.

Folks of that era had one small eccentricity, though: They wrapped their skulls with bandages and hard pillows to elongate them, with the result that many of them developed holes in their heads. But Dr. Carrion maintains this practice didn't seem to interfere with their highly developed culture.

No. 49 on Exhibit.
The mummy now on exhibit in New York is officially known as No. 49. He is typical of the other 48 mummies already under observation in Peru.

Dr. Carrion described No. 49 as having been a great chief who was about 70 years old when he died. Judging from a study of his skull showing five abscesses—three in the lower jaw and two in the upper—he spent many a night 3,000 years ago suffering from toothaches.

Dr. Carrion will give a lecture and show a movie on the unwrapping of the mummy at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in the Pan American Union before returning to New York to escort No. 49 back to Peru.

1,200 Due to Attend UDC Convention Opening Today

By the Associated Press
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.—More than 1,200 delegates were expected to register today for the 56th general convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Committee meetings will follow the registration and the convention, first to be held here since 1913, will begin tonight.

Selection of a site for a general headquarters, for the UDC, a major item on the agenda, was expected to be discussed later this week.

The Division President's Club, formed of presidents of State UDC divisions, elected Mrs. K. K. Kennedy of Baton Rouge, La., as president in a pre-convention meeting last night. Other officers included Mrs. Bradford Murdock of Jackson, Tenn., vice president; Mrs. Elmer Davis of Lexington, Ky., secretary, and Mrs. W. W. Weldon of Enid, Okla., treasurer.

Two Vocational Schools Schedule Open House

Two vocational high schools have announced they will hold open house tomorrow night in observance of National Education Week.

Chamberlain Vocational High School, on Potomac avenue between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets S.E., will present a two-hour program starting at 8 o'clock. Mother, 35, Slashes 4 Children's Throats

By the Associated Press

STERLING, Ill., Nov. 7.—A 35-year-old mother said last night she slashed the throats of her four small children because a "saint kept telling her to do it."

The woman, Mrs. James Moughan, made the statement at a hearing in which she was adjudged insane within three hours

Hospital attendants said all the children are expected to recover. They are Mary Ellen, age 2 months; Richard, 20 months; Michael, 3 years old next month, and James, 4.

Mrs. Moughan was taken to the East Moline State hospital.

At the hearing before Judge Walter J. Stevens she asked whether the children were still alive. Assured that they were, she said, "It would be terrible—a disgrace—for them to go through life with scars."

Her husband, a steelworker, testified that Mrs. Moughan had not been well since the birth of their last baby.

He was working in a shed at the rear of their three-room home, she said, when Mrs. Moughan began slashing the children with a kitchen butcher knife.
